Fun things to do with snow at school

Some fun things to do with snow at school are making forts so you can play in them while not destroying them, making snowmen, and making snow angels. But no snow ball fighting!

Smiley's Technology section!

tech lab 1-up!

So, first, a bit about this section. Here I will be doing reviews on technology and stuff. Well, here goes: At the beginning of the school year, I walk into the tech lab, and my reaction is like "What!?!?" All the computers are upgraded! This is good! So, more recently, this week I walked into the tech lab, and BAM! All the computers have individual headphones! Of course they're not my ideal headphones (No mics? This is an outrage!!), but they will do, especially since I'm currently headphone-less. (My headphones disappeared earlier in the year.) It's nice to know that funding is going to the upgrading of the tech lab! Long live my favorite subject! Next time: me, A traitor to the cause?

Story Time:

Star Wars: A Fairy Tale (Part One)

Once upon a time, in a galaxy far, far away... Once there was a farmer's son named Luke. Luke was an orphan that lived with his aunt and uncle. He wanted to learn how to ride, so he could travel to a faraway land and join the uprising against the King, a nasty fellow. “Luke! Come for dinner!” It was his Aunt Beru calling. “I’ll be right there!” He left his job cleaning up the mules, and went to supper. “Oh Luke, why didn’t you finish cleaning up the mules?” “ You know, they have quite a bit of clay on them. It’s hard to get off.” replied Luke. “Well, I need them cleaned up by tomorrow,” said his Uncle Owen.
